U. S. RELAY TEAM SCORES VICTORY AT AMSTERDAM

Members of 800-Metre Team Have No Difficulty In Maintaining Lead

OTHER U. S. TRIUMPHS

Weismuller, Taking Things Easy, Wins Over Japanese

By Frederick K. Abbott.
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

OLYMPIC SWIMMING STADIUM, AMSTERDAM, Aug 11—The United States men's 800-metre Olympic relay team scored a sensational victory in the finals of the event today, establishing a new Olympic record of 9:36 1-5 and having no difficulty in keeping a substantial lead from the start.

Just a few minutes before, America had scored two other triumphs when the Olympic record for the 100 metre free style swim for women was twice broken by girl swimmers from the United States in the semi-finals of the event.

The American relay team which made the new record today, consisted of Austin Clapp, Walter Laufer, George Kojac and Johnny Weismuller. Japan took second place in the event and Canada was third. Then came Hungary, Sweden, Great Britain and Spain.

Clapp, America's lead off man in the relay, gave Laufer, a four yard lead over the Jepenese who opposed him. Laufer increased the lead to twelve yards. Kojac saving himself for the final of the 100 metre free style swim this afternoon, loafed through his leg but managed to maintain a twelve yard lead. Japan was still second.

Weismuller also took things easy on the last leg. He finished six yards ahead of the anchor man of the Japanese team.

America shone brilliantly also in the semi-finals of the 100 metre free style for women. In the first heat, Miss Albina Osipowich, of Worcester, Mass., established a new Olympic record of 1:12 1-5 for the event, one fifth of a second under the old mark.

Her record did not stand for long, however, in the second heat, Miss Eleanor Garratti, of San Raphael, Cal., lowered the record to 1:11 2-5, four fifths of a second under Miss Osipowich's mark.

Miss Susan Laird, of Homestead, Pa., took second in the first heat of the semi-final in 1:13 4-5, so that all three American girls in the event qualified for this afternoon's final.

Miss Cooper, of Great Britain, was third in the first heat in 1:14. Miss McDowall, of Great Britain, took second place in the second heat in 1:15 3-5 while Fraulein Lehmann, of Germany, finished third in 1:15 4-5.

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 11—(INS)—The program of today's events was as follows:

Swimming—100 metre free style, women, semi-final; 800 metre relay, men, final; 100 metre back stroke, women, final; high diving, women, final; high diving, men, final; 100 metre free style, men, final; 100 metre free style, women, final; equestrian sports; training, jumping, at Hilversum; boxing, fencing.

Fortune Came Too Late To Aid Kansas Farmer

HUGOTON, Kas., Aug. 11—(INS)—Just a month after learning that he had fallen heir to a fortune estimated at $10,000,000. Alfred E. Ullom, a farmer living near here, died.

He succumbed to heart disease without touching a penny of the vast legacy.

The fortune was left to Ullom by a great uncle, who amassed it in the fur business as a partner of the late John Jacob Astor, more than a century ago. The will found recently among the effects of the great financier, revealed that the fund had been held intact until after the death of the last of the second generation. Ullom's death released a flow of gold to his children.

ELECTRICAL STORM STRIKES SEVERELY

Section Near Lancaster Hard Hit; Flood, Hail and Fire Accompany It

MANY NARROW ESCAPES

LANCASTER, Pa., Aug. 11—(INS)—Damage from flood, hail and fire today was mute evidence of the severity of the electrical storm that struck Lancaster and vicinity late yesterday and raged for almost two hours.

From the outlying districts of the county today came additional reports of damage caused to crops, barns and houses. No estimate of the destruction caused by the storm has been made, but officials said they believed it would run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

In Lancaster sewers were unable to carry off the volume of water and streets were flooded when a six foot section burst under the pressure. Telephone and telegraph communications were disrupted in almost all sections of the county, making a check of the damage difficult.

When lightning struck an automobile about three miles from here, Mrs. Charles Raden, of this city, was seriously burned, but physicians said she would recover.

Two firemen had a thrilling escape from drowning when the automobile in which they were answering an alarm was swept from a bridge by a wall of water that moved down Mill Creek. The men, John and Harold McFalls, both of the West Willow volunteer fire department, grasped a branch of a tree as they were carried downstreams and pulled themselves to safety.

Four barns were reported destroyed as the result of lightning, while scores of farmers reported extensive damage to crops caused by hail and water when small streams flooded the lowlands.

NEW YORK, Aug. 11—(INS)—Three persons dead from lightning bolts was the toll today of the tropical downpour which drenched the metropolitan district last evening. The heat wave was broken, cellars and streets flooded, lighting service crippled, broadcasting disrupted, and several buildings damaged.

Frightened by a flash of lightning as she sat at an apartment window, Mrs. Rena Drucker, 22, screamed and fell to her death on the sidewalk three stories below.

J. T. Maguire, 50, was struck by a lightning bolt on the street. Alfred Marsh, 17, was struck and killed by a bolt while in swimming at South Plainfield, N. J.

Notions Dealers Top List Made By Appraisers Here

The majority of classifications for vendors of foreign and domestic merchandise in Bristol borough, according to the 1928 list, includes the names of nearly one hundred dealers who are listed as dealing in notions.

The number under this heading, the correct figure for which is 98, is nearly three times as high as the next longest list, that for grocers. Listed in the borough by the appraisers are 38 individuals selling groceries.

The two items mentioned above lead the list by far, each of the other listings containing but a few names.

Of the remainder the leaders as far as figures are concerned, are: Auto dealers, who total six; milk dealers, the number given as eight; produce sellers, twelve. While auto dealers classified only total six, there are however the names of three others coming under the classification of garage proprietors. In many instances the owners of garages are likewise dealers in automobiles.

Eight druggists are located here, and the remainder of the list contains those who ply many and varied trades.

Some of those not mentioned above could be classed as follows: Oils, both wholesale and retail; hardware dealers; haberdashers, outfitters, furnishers and sellers of gowns; several shoemakers and a number of barbers; tinsmiths; florists, &c.

In Bristol township there are eight grocery stores mentioned; while again in this locality the notions total tops the former, the number given being as thirty-four.

DEDICATE NEW EDIFICE AT PERKASIE SUNDAY

Evangelical Conference Officials Will Participate In Exercises

BUILDING COST $45,000

PERKASIE, Aug. 11—The first unit of the First Evangelical Church edifice at Fifth and Market streets, recently completed at a cost of approximately $45,000 will be dedicated tomorrow. The dedicatory services will be held in connection with evening services, at which Bishop J. F. Dunlap will preach, but the dedicatory season will extend over a period of eight days with special services every day except Saturday.

Pastors of all Perkasie churches, former pastors of the local Evangelical congregations and conference officials will participate with the local pastor, Rev. J. F. White, in this series of services

The Sunday school session Sunday morning at 9:15 will mark the first services in the new edifice. At 10:30 will be held the regular morning worship with Bishop J. F. Dunlap in the pulpit.

At 2:30 p. m. Perkasie pastors will bring greetings from their respective congregations and at 7:30 Bishop Dunlap will conduct the formal dedicatory services. The E. L. C. E. will hold its meetings at 7 o'clock Sunday evening.

Monday evening Rev. C. E. Hess, Quakertown, who was pastor of Ebenezer congregation when the merger of the two local Evangelical congregations was effected, will preach and on Thursday evening, the Rev. E. M. Slichter, who was at that time pastor of Bethel congregation, will preach.

The completion of this unit of the proposed edifice marks an epochal achievement in the history of this denomination in Perkasie.

The original Bethel edifice was erected in 1889. Several years later when differences of opinion arose and caused a division of the church body, a group of the local congregation withdrew and later erected Ebenezer edifice. Separately they worshipped for more than a generation and then began the discussion that more than four years ago resulted in the reuniting of the two branches of the church. Both Rev. Slichter and Rev. Hess, pastors of Bethel and Ebenezer congregations, respectively, were ardent supporters of the merger movement and with few exceptions led their entire congregations in developing a sentiment for a merged Evangelical church. The conferences in adopting the terms of the merger, inserted a pro-

Harry Guggenheim Takes Active Part In the Many Items Talked Over

At a conference with Colonel Charles A. Lindburgh, in New York, this week, Edgar N. Gott, president of the Keystone Aircraft Corporation, and C. Talbot Porter, also an official of the local company, discussed many phases of commercial aviation.

Various phases of aviation as related to the Keystone plant here, were talked over, and the "Lone Eagle" was informed of the work being carried on. He expressed much interest in the type of planes built, the quantity turned out, and the general method of manufacture at the local aircraft factory.

Harry Guggenheim, head of the Guggenheim Foundation, which is doing much for the promotion of commercial aviation also conferred with the three.

The interest of the Foundation in aviation is marked, and large sums are spent by it for research work. Prizes are offered for the inventions that will assist planes to fly through fog with safety.

In consultation with Clarence Chamberlain at New York on Thursday, Edgar N. Gott was informed by the trans-Atlantic flier that he contemplates a visit to the Keystone plant during the coming week.

State News

HARRISBURG, Aug. 10—(INS)—Continued attempts of applicants for an automobile driver's license to have a qualified driver substitute for them at the examination has resulted in the issuance of special instructions to break up this practice, Benjamin G. Eynon, registrar of motor vehicles, said today.

During the first seven months of this year 12 learners' permits were indefinitely suspended and licenses held by six persons who attempted to substitute for them were withdrawn. The motor code stipulates that both the applicant and the person who attempts to substitute for him shall be arrested. If convicted, the fine is $200 or three months in jail.

Eynon said that usually the attempted fraud is discovered easily but in some cases a substitute had been selected who not only corresponded to the physical description of the applicant, but who also was able to duplicate his signature. One case was reported to the department when a Negro chauffeur attempted to take the examination for a white applicant.

—Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Trude, of Pond street, left today for Norfolk, Virginia, where they will pass a short period.

COMPLETION OF UNKNOWN SOLDIER'S TOMB WILL BE REALIZED WITHIN YEAR

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9—(INS)—The tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery, which since November 11, 1921, has been marked with a plain marble slab, will be completed, and immortalization of unnamed American dead of the World War accomplished within a year.

This announcement, from the War Department commission in charge of the tomb, was based on the fact that there remains at present only the selection of an appropriate design for the tomb from five drawings and appropriation of the necessary funds for construction, $50,000, by Congress, for actual completion of the work.

It is considered likely Congress will appropriate the funds early in December, and that work will start immediately thereafter.

In the meantime five competitors for the design to be used to complete the tomb are perfecting their drawings. Their designs were selected from 73 submitted to the commission. No date has been set for announcement of the winning design, but it will probably be made early this fall.

Much good work was shown in the 73 designs submitted to the judges appointed by the War Department to pick the memorial, and it was a hard matter to pick the best five from the group. The whole group is now on exhibition in the War Department museum here. They range from the utmost simplicity to the grandeur and complication of oriental carving and design work.

The five successful competitors in the contest were picked by a jury representing the American Institute of Architects, the Gold Star Mothers, and the American Legion. The drawings were submitted without names attached, and names were placed in envelopes, which were opened after the winning designs had been picked, by Victor Mindeleff, Washington architectural advisor to the group in charge of the contest. In most cases architects and sculptors combined in submitting designs.

TIME THE HEALER

During the week of September 16 the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic will be held in Denver, bringing together once again in happy reunion the "boys in blue." Though bent with age, these heroes of sixty odd years ago will tramp the streets of Denver in proud procession.

The nation derives a great deal of satisfaction out of the fact that it has been many years since this encampment has been marred by the waving of the bloody shirt. It is to the undying credit of the venerable veterans of the northern army that they have done most in erasing the old scars and stamping out the destructive and foolish sectionalism engendered by the Civil war.

The unveiling of a monument to a Civil war hero inspired a discussion of this sectional hatred by President Coolidge a few days ago. He blames it for retarding the national progress. There are still some who should heed his words:

"The time has long since passed when to hold or express such hostile sentiments should ever be permitted to work out to the advantage of anyone. Those who resort to them should find that their standing in the public confidence is thereby seriously impaired."

Americans on both sides of the Mason and Dixon line are not proud of the fact that for many years the bitterness, hatred and sectional animosities left in the wake of the Civil war were stimulated and kept alive for the political advantage of the unscrupulous.

EXPERIENCE

The world has ceased to laugh when Henry Ford opens his mouth. It has forgotten his peace ship and his brave pronouncement that "history is bunk." the automobile wizard is proof of the truth of his words that if "you take all the experience and judgment of men over 50 out of the world there wouldn't be enough left to run it."

His public statement on the occasion o his 65th birthday anniversary might serve as the creed of American business.

"The real profits of this or any other successful company are increased experience, better methods, more skilled workmen, more highly developed engineering brains. Those are the best profits we gained from the 15,000,000 Model T Fords—money is not the best profit."

Many American business enterprises are living up to that creed. They are making money, but their greatest satisfaction is derived from the public service they render and their achievements in engineering and production.

Henry Ford is one of innumerable Americans who believe and prove by their own lives that a man's best work may come after he is fifty and even after he is sixty. There are many such men who can work longer and accomplish more than the hustling youngsters of business. The Detroit manufacturer boasts that he will do more in the next five years than he did the last twenty, and he probably will.

"TENDERLOIN," starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Rose Shannon, beautiful cabaret dancer, becomes innocently involved in the mysterious theft of $200,000 from the Mercer National Bank. The Professor, leader of a gang of crooks, believing that she knows where the money is, corners her in a lonely cottage. She is saved by Chuck White, a member of the gang with whom she is in love. Escaping to the station, she overhears the gang plotting to kill Chuck for double-crossing them. She sets out to warn him, but collapses and is taken to the hospital. The police in the meantime are watching the antique store where the Professor has his headquarters.

CHAPTER XX

Within the antique shop one dull, shaded electric light illuminated the long room. It cast into deep shadow the faces of Lefty and Sparrow sitting side by side on the edge of the sofa, their elbows resting on their knees. Timorously they watched the Professor, who lolled back in an easy chair, his left leg stretched out before him. Each time he shifted his position, which he did frequently, resentful of his enforced inactivity, a little grimace of pain crossed his face.

Over in a dark corner sat a fourth person, his hat drawn low over his eyes, his arms resting upon a table. The lighted cigar that he puffed from time to time glowed faintly in the sombre light. His coat collar turned up about his neck half concealed the lower part of his jaw, and made queer shadows on his cheek. He neither spoke nor did he make any move to interrupt the intermittent outbursts of Heminway.

"Well, how the hell did that trash get into the bag—that's what I'd like to know!" The Professor turned an accusing glance on the silent figure in the corner. "I'll swear the girl didn't put it there." He stopped, waiting for an answer, but there was none forthcoming. He paused thoughtfully, pondering over the mystery. "The lock on the bag had not been tampered with when they caught her."

The only gesture of recognition that he received from any one of the group in the room was the flicker of the lighted cigar as the man in the corner flicked the gray ash from its end.

He sank back into his chair and remained quiet for a few seconds. Then his glance turned on Lefty and Sparrow. Beneath the scourging gaze that proceeded from his gimlet eyes the two men cowered, shifting uneasily, as though to ward off the titanic rage that they so dreaded.

"Damn you!" he shouted, his anger so great that it must be vented on someone—anyone. "Somebody knows something about this. I'm going to have the truth if I have to croak the whole bunch of you."

His outburst was suddenly interrupted as the door swung open to admit Chuck, closely followed by the Mug. The Mug's hand was buried in his pocket, but the way in which he shoved his companion forward gave quick proof of what rested in his hidden fingers.

"You dirty skunk!" Heminway snarled, his yellow teeth gleaming as his upper lip curled back in scorn and hatred. "It's a damn good thing you showed up. Where'd you pick him up?" he turned on the Mug.

"Cripes, I had a helluva time," the Mug whined. "I goes chasin' him all over de ranch half de night. I barges 'round t'rough de woods an' I can't see nut'in'. Den I lands on a road an' comes out pretty near de station. Ya know—where we come in at."

"Yes, well, what then?"

"So I says to meself he ain't down here nohow, and just nen I sees dis bird beatin' it hell bent fer heaven up de road. Well, I gives him a chase and catches up wif 'im an' starts back to de house. It's almost t'ree o'clock nen, an' by de time we gits up dere I seen youse beatin' it down de road in de buggy, so I figgers all we kin do's wait an' catch de nex' train, an' we does."

"Good work, Mug," the Professor applauded his gorilla. "Well, got anything to say for yourself?" the Professor turned his attention to Chuck, looking him up and down.

Chuck returned the hostile gaze with a semblance of quiet fury. "I come here myself. That bird didn't have to bring me," he shot a glance of triumph towards the Mug. "I had a gat, didn't I? You don't think he could of took me if I hadn't wanted to come. I was setting out for here anyhow. I got just one thing to tell you. I'm through. And I mean it. I'm through for good and all."

"Ah, so the Squire of Dames is through, is he?" the Professor laughed evilly. "Well, we'll see about that."

"There's not going to be no seeing, so far's I'm concerned," Chuck repeated his statement emphatically. "I'm through, I tell you, for good and all. After this you can run your lousy joint an' play all your dirty tricks without me. I seen just about enough—all I want to see. From now on I'm going straight."

Lefty and Sparrow looked at the boy in astonishment. They almost gasped, so strange, so unnatural, did such words sound, coming from Chuck. Chuck, the youngest of their gang! The daredevil gorilla who had never been caught!

"Aw, jeez, fella, y'ain't quittin' th' racket, are youse?" The Sparrow looked up, his narrow little face one long question mark.

"I sure am, Sparrow, old kid," Chuck returned. "You and me we've had a lotta fun together an' I'll never forget you, Sparrow, but me, I'm going straight, see!"

"Wot! Goin' straight wif de hooker?" the Mug sneered.

"You shut your dirty face." Chuck took a menacing step towards his captor, who drew back as though frightened.

"Be quiet, you two," the Professor interposed. "We're not going to have any more arguments around this joint. We've got a lot more things to think about than this." He looked towards the figure in the corner. "Any dicks outside?"

Lefty got up and moved over to the big front window and drew back the heavy tapestry, allowing a narrow ray of light to shine into the room. He peered around the curtains cautiously and then shook his head.

"Nope, not a soul." He dropped the curtain again and returned to his seat.

"Our very dear friends seem to have forgotten us." The Professor cackled a mirthless laugh. "Well, so much the better. And now to business." He settled himself back in his chair.

But his mind might not have been so much at ease could he have seen the two detectives waiting around the corner. Simpson and Cowles were still at their post, loitering with a patience that would have tried Job himself. Finally Cowles drew out his watch and looked at it.

"One o'clock," he muttered. "Say it looks like this is going to be the round-up. Tell you what you better do, you better get on up to that hospital and see if they can let the girl out, and you keep right after her. If she makes a beeline for here, so much the better. If she don't, tail her. On your way send in a call for some re-enforcements. Boy, I think we got 'em." He slapped his companion heartily on the back, jubilant over what he believed would be their success.

"All right," Simpson agreed, and started off on his errand.

An hour passed. The street was dull and deserted. The afternoon sun beat lazily down on the old brick buildings, warming them into an apathetic languor. The clatter and rattle of vehicles passing along The Bowery sent only a faint resonance of sound to the side streets.

Then suddenly Cowles drew back around the corner and out of sight. From where he stood he could see a weary, drooping figure half running, half walking. The girl! So she, too, was on her way as fast as she could get there to this very evident rendezvous. Cowles' heart jumped with joy. He was almost at the end of his hard weeks of work. It was only a matter of moments now. He was going to get them, and how!

The girl sped past, all unheeding and unseeing. He could almost hear her gasping breath as she went by, so close he was to her. He saw her slow down as she neared the shop of the Professor. He wondered but casually at her seeming reluctance to enter. And then he saw the door open, and the girl disappeared.

A PROHIBITIONIST FROM CONVICTION

Sir Wilfred T. Grenfell, known the world over for his self-sacrificing work on behalf of the fisher folk of Labrador during the past thirty-five years, has come out unqualifiedly in favor of prohibition. That a man of his caliber should thus have expressed his opinions on this subject is of the utmost value, especially from the point of view of the young man, who often takes his first drink because he thinks that thereby he is proving himself to be "manly." Sir Wilfred is a prohibitionist from conviction, as a result of his own experience and observation. Let us hear what Sir Wilfred has to say on the subject.

In the course of an article from his pen in Young Canada he puts his position in a nutshell when he shortly declares: "My standpoint is simply that liquor is unnecessary and bad." He added that while alcohol is not allowed to be sold on any port of the coast on which he is working, so surely as it comes and an illicit sale begins, one sees its evil results immediately.

As a sailor, Sir Wilfred knows what havoc can be wrought by liquor on board ship. He has seen, he says, ships lost through collisions, because the captain had been taking a "little alcohol." It must be remembered that "Dr. Grenfell," as one still from long association feels inclined to style him, speaks not only as a sailor but as an own experience, he says: "We can get just as good results without it, and I always fear its power to create a desire for itself. It is not necessary for happiness, for I have known no set of men happier and enjoying their lives more than the crews of my own vessel and the many, many fishermen who like ourselves neither touch, taste or handle it."—Adv.

"Yes," said Mrs. Lackpenny, dramatically, "dear Claude is going to set up in business of his own. He leaves the office next week. He has burnt his bridges."

"Poor dear," said her friend sympathetically, "I do hope they weren't his best ones!"

It pays to be polite—even to your own wife.

Eva—"Why don't you and Hank get married?"

Lois—"Because we can't get a house or flat."

Eva—"But can't you live with your parents-in-law?"

Lois—"No. They're still living with theirs."

A pretty girl lost her glove. The finder was an old bachelor named Page and he returned it to her with this note:

"If from your glove you take the letter 'G',
That glove is love, and that I have for thee."

To this the girl replied:

"If from your name you take the letter 'P',
Then Page is age, and that won't do for me."

Henry Ford seems to have a passion for all old things except the horse and buggy.

Hunter (purchasing new outfit)—"Do you guarantee this gun? Suppose it bursts and blows off my head?"

Dealer—"In that case we will give you a new gun."

UMPIRE RIOLA FORFEITS A. O. H.-LEEDOM GAME

By T. M. Juno

Umpire Riola, last night, accused the A. O. H. ball team of stalling, in order that the game be called on account of darkness, and so forfeited the game to the Leedom's team, who were leading 8-0 at the time.

The victory assured the carpetmakers of the second half pennant and now they must meet St. Ann's, winners of the first half in a three game series.

Brooks was hurling good ball, allowing but two singles and fanning five batters. Barrett was the leader with the bludgeon, getting three out of three and scoring every time.

After the Hibernians went out in order in their start, the carpetmakers assembled three runs. With one gone, Barrett started it with a bingle. Riola skied out. Barrett stole second and scored on J. Fine's hit over second. W. Fine singled. H. Cochrane hit a two-bagger to left, counting J. Fine. W. Fine scored on a passed ball. White flied out.

The "Hiboes" went out in order in the first half of the second. Leedom's scored four more in their part. Wilkerson took a hearty swing at a Rodgers' pitch and slammed it to left for three bases. Brooks singled to right, scoring Wilkerson. Cooper bunted and all hands were safe when Rodgers fumbled the pill. Barrett singled over second, scoring Brooks. Riola flied out. J. Fine rolled out. Cooper and Barrett scored on W. Fine's short hit to left field. Cochrane forced W. Fne at second.

Both teams drew a blank in the third. In the fourth the Hibernians got two men on bases but failed to count. Leedom's counted again before the game was forfeited. Barrett singled and took third on Riola's sacrifice. Barrett scored on a balk. Margerum booted Fine's grounder. Fine stole second and took third when McDevitt threw the ball over J. Dougherty's head. Umpire Riola ruled that the A. O. H. team was not playing baseball and forfeited the game.

SUNDAY BASEBALL TILT AT TULLYTOWN FIELD

Manager Sagolla's St. Ann's nine will attempt to throw some sand in the road of the fast-going express train of George Obermier's Tullytown nine. The game will be played on the paper mill grounds and is scheduled to begin at 3.00 p. m., Sunday.

The Tullytown slugging nine with several local boys in its routine of players is having a great year, winning twelve straight and still going strong. On its list are such teams as the Trenton Parksides, Flemington A. C., Capitol View and Lambertville. "Bill" Fine, of local talent, will again be on the firing line for the paper mill boys. "Bill" is having a great year with this team. Afflerbach, as in all other games, will be his battery mate. Hellings will be on first. Carmen will be the keystone guardian, while two more Bristol players, Dugan and Riola, will be on short and third, respectively. The outfield will be made up of Tuckerson, Spangler, and Phipps.

Tulio, will be Sagolla's choice to try to stop Tullytown's winning streak. Stallone will be behind the plate. O'Riola will guard first while Paletta or Seneca will handle second. Roe will be at short while McDevitt will be in the hot corner. The outfielders will be the choice of Gilardi, Pieo, Fields, DeRisi, Missera and Paletta.

The two teams battled in Bristol several weeks ago and Tullytown captured a hard fought 5-2 victory.

All St. Ann's players are asked to report to the club house at 2 p. m.

His Great Heart

That's what won for Ray Barbuti, Syracuse University star, in the 400-metre event at Amsterdam. Outclassed, run off his legs, this great gamester couldn't — wouldn't — give up, and when Ball, Canadian marvel, seemed about to flash ahead of him at the tape, Barbuti hurled himself headlong across the line in the most dramatic finish Olympic spectators ever saw.

COACH TO CALL YALE FOOTBALL CREW SEPT. 15

By R. T. Bulkeley
(INS Staff Correspondent)

NEW HAVEN, CONN.—A new era in football at Yale will open on September 15 when the candidates are called into action here for the first time by Marvin Allen Stevens, of Osborne, Kan., a student in Yale Medical School. Stevens begins this year to fill the shoes of T. A. D. Jones, famous coach who retired at the close of last year's season but who remains as head of the alumni advisory board for football.

Stevens has a group of seventeen veterans from last year's highly successful Varsity squad plus the greatest wealth of freshman football men that Yale has known in years with which to build his 1928 team. Maxon Hunter Eddy, of Middlebury, Vermont, is Yale's varsity captain this year. Eddy plays right tackle and has been one of the outstanding Yale linesmen of all time.

The Yale team lost a pair of invaluable ends when Fishwick and Scott graduated last June, and out here in New Haven the report is that Stevens' big job will be finding a pair of ends to take their places. Yale has had other good ends before Fishwick and Scott and the belief is that others will be found this year.

Seven varsity backfield men are left over from last year's team. They are Billhardt, Decker, Garvey, Hubbard, Hohen, Switz and Wilson.

Charlesworth, who last year made a record by the number of tackles he made—the cry "Tackled by Charlesworth" drawled out in the press stand becoming a by-word—is back as the outstanding center candidate. Supporting him may be found Hall, Minor, Spiel and Kell, guards. Eddy, of course, will be the chief feature among tackles with Marting, of last year's team also on hand.

Among the candidates for end are Crile, Oldt and West of the 1927 team.

Sophomores who may be heard from on the Yale Varsity this year are: Dunn, Austin, McLennan, Cruickshank, Luce, Taylor, Stoddard, Snead, Weiner, McDonald, in the backfield; Linehan, Adams, Cunningham, Coursey and Walker as ends; Fishe, Weicher, and Vincent as tackles; Stewart, Hare and Belous as guards; and Loeser as center.

The Yale schedule is as colorful as usual, this year. One of the hgh spots in early season will be the Georgia game. Georgia surprised Yale last year by taking the victory 14 to 10 in the only game Yale lost. Georgia, always second on Yale's schedule, took advantage of numerous Yale fumbles last year and so gained many more points than any other Yale opponent. Army, Maryland and Princeton each scored six points against Eli.

Brown and Dartmouth each ended a long series of soccesses here last fall, Yale beating Brown 10 to 0 and ending the sway of the famous "Iron Men."

Dartmouth, highly touted as the eastern champions, fell by the same 19 to 0 score. Bowdoin 41 to 0 and Harvard 14 to 0 were the other scores.

Yale will this year have no Caldwell in her line up but the material is of such a nature that high hopes are held for a successful year again. The test is considered to be that of the new head coach but Stevens is expected to meet that test successfully, having had some years of work as an assistant coach, and having had a chance to look his material over in the spring practice this year.

SHORT AND SWEET

"Do you believe in companionate marriages?"

"No," answered Miss Cayenne. "Belief is impossible. Companionate marriages seem to be an arrangement by which nobody is expected to put much faith in anybody."

People who think the Jews have no land of their own haven't kept an eye on Florida.

"Look at the foolish Mr. Baker!" said one man to another. "Out on a rainy day like this without an umbrella! Is he crazy?"

"I think so," said the friend hurridly. "Let's hurry on. I don't want to meet him."

"Why not?"

"He may recognize this umbrella. It's his."

vision that made the merger of subordinate bodies optional with the congregations affected.

Perkasie's two congregations immediately took steps to unite and were the first two congregations in the East Penna. Conference to consummate a congregational merger.

Uniting of the two local congregations automatically precluded the appointment of one of the pastors who then served here, for the merged congregation. To the Rev. J. F. White was delegated the task of welding the two congregations into a well functioning unit. How he has succeeded is shown by the progress made by the body. Its achievements have more than justified the most optimistic hopes of its members and won the admiration of church folk of all denominations here.

The unit which will be dedicated Sunday is 61x65 feet with a 13x32 feet annex. It is of steel and brick construction and is equipped with the most modern appurtenances. It has a seating capacity on the main floor of 480 and a spacious balcony surrounding the main floor. It was designed to accomodate the Sunday school and is equipped with movable partitions, with which to separate classes during the teaching periods. There is a specially equipped room for mothers, a social room and quarters for the ladies' aid society.

The front of the building is of temporary construction, which will be removed when the final unit is completed.
